Kent Phillips

Each January Trezevant hosts a Board Reception to honor our current and past Board members, Resident Council members and Floor representatives. We hold this event immediately following our Annual meeting. It serves as a time to confirm faith in our mission, honor our departing volunteers and welcome new members. As the new year breaks, it is a time for reflection and renewal.

John Ivy starts his second year serving as Trezevant's Chair, and his comments at this year's reception bear repeating. He carried over a theme from last year's comments as he took the helm of leadership – that we should focus on a single letter to guide us. Last year, that letter was “E”, as in Excellence – the definition of it, the quest for it and the measurement of it. Most notably, he spoke of the necessary Energy required to achieve it.

I'd like to think that message sank in well, and that our leadership team listened. Following a year in which Trezevant was honored with a Choice Community award for superior levels of resident engagement, and an Excellence in Spiritual Care award by the Healthcare Chaplaincy Network, in 2019 we earned a Bronze level award for excellence in health care for the Terrace and the Allen Morgan center. This award is presented by the American Health Care Association and the National Center for Assisted Living and follows the core values and criteria of the Baldrige Performance Excellence Program. In addition, the annual survey of the Allen Morgan Center by the Tennessee Department of Health was deficiency-free, the best performance possible. Consequently, we are now a 5-star facility, the highest rating possible.

John is focusing on a new letter for this year – “G”. This letter has a bold side to it, as in Grand and Great. As we focus on those qualities, we can't exclude the humble, or Gentle side of it – as in Grace, and her close cousins, Graciousness and Gracefulness. These are terrific words to Guide us in this, our 44th year of serving Memphis seniors enjoying their Golden years.

Finally, one of my favorites – Gratitude. I am personally grateful to work with such wonderful residents, committed volunteers and supportive Board members. Many thanks to John for his leadership and to our Board of Directors and Foundation Trustees for keeping us focused on Excellence, Greatness and Grace.

From the FOUNDATION

Stacey Sears

I would like to thank all of you for the warm welcome I received in my new position as Development Director for the Trezevant Foundation. I am very excited about growing the foundation to meet the needs of the residents, staff, and community of Trezevant.

Trezevant brings fond memories to many of you. I am only asking you to consider allowing others to experience what you have at Trezevant. Leaving your legacy at Trezevant for more generations to experience the Trezevant Way. What is it to leave a legacy? I believe when you leave a legacy you leave a little part of yourself behind to better the next person, generation or decade. By recognizing the Trezevant Foundation in your will or estate plan you will be helping to ensure that Trezevant will be around for current and future residents.

Like many non-profit organizations, Trezevant Foundation relies on generous donations from individuals, grants and other foundations to provide the best service to our residents and to further the mission of Trezevant. There are many worthy organizations to donate your time, talent and treasure and we hope you will consider the Trezevant Foundation as well.

There are several ways to give to the Trezevant Foundation.

Types of gifts needed are:

- Gifts of Cash
- Will Bequest
- Bank accounts and Certificates of Deposit
- Retirement Plan Assets and Annuities
- Life Insurance
- Entrance Fee Investment

The E. H. Little Society, named for Trezevant founding benefactor in memory of his wife, Suzanne Trezevant Little, is comprised of those who have included the Trezevant Foundation in their planned giving. If you are interested in becoming a member of the E.H. Little Society, please contact Stacey Sears with the Trezevant Foundation at foundation@trezevantmanor.org or call 901-251-9242 to hear more about leaving your legacy.

Again, thank you all for making me feel welcomed here at Trezevant. If you have not stopped by please come in and say hello!

From the CHAPLAIN

The Rev. Julie McKenna

We had a wonderful Candlelight Christmas worship celebration on Dec. 22nd with 175 people present!

Also as part of our Christmas celebration residents were offered the opportunity to donate to our Christmas music and flowers at St. Edward. You all were especially generous this year. Thanks to your generosity we will be able to offer special music once a month for worship at St. Edward!

2020 brings some new offerings in spiritual care also: Mindfulness meditation has moved from Wednesdays to Monday at 3 pm in the chapel.

Chaplains' class—3pm on Wednesdays

Chaplains class kicked off Jan 8th with the Rev. Anne Carriere leading us in her class "That was Then, This is Now. In it, we explored the various types of loss we have experienced in our lives. It was a wonderful class with lots of good discussions.

IN February, I will facilitate a discussion entitled "Dementia—how do we relate to friends living with Dementia?" The Rev. Tom Momberg and the Rev. Eyleen Farmer will lead a discussion on the meaning of Ash Wed. and Lent, and in March and April 1, the Rev. Ben Bledsoe will lead a 4-week study "Wherein Lies your Hope? The first 3 weeks of that study will focus on biblical references to hope, and the fourth will be a panel discussion with 3-4 Trezevant residents, sharing what gives them hope.

Spiritual Speaker Series—7:15 pm the first Tuesday of each month

Our spiritual speaker series, "Created to Create" resumes with Page Williamson sharing on Spirituality and Photography on Tuesday, Feb 4th. Rinnie

Wood will share her understanding of Spirituality and Exercise on Tuesday, March 3rd, and Ben Bledsoe will share his experience of spirituality and Gardening on April 7th.

Special Worship services this spring include:

Ash Wednesday Service, Feb. 26th at noon in the chapel. April 5 begins HOLY WEEK and we will have the following special services that week:

- Palm Sunday Celebration with Holy Communion—Sunday, April 5th at 10:30 (Special Music)
- Maundy Thursday with Holy Communion, Thursday, April 9th at 3 pm
- Good Friday, Friday, April 10th at Noon.
- Easter Celebration with Holy Communion Sunday, April 12th at 10:30 (Special music, trumpet)

A note to residents and families—We have a lot of programming going on through the chaplains' dept., but please know the chaplains want to be available to residents and families to support you as you go through changes in health, transitions from one level of care to the next, or provide a listening ear with whatever is going on with you. Please feel free to call me and set up an appointment if you feel a need to talk to someone, are having a difficult time making a decision, or struggling with caring for a spouse, friend or family member. You can reach me at 325-8108 or jmckenna@trezevantmanor.org. I am in the office Monday through Thursday, and Sunday mornings, but I will call you back if you leave a message and be glad to set up a time to meet with you. Barbara is also available as needed for residents to talk with. She is here Monday through Friday. Her contact info is: 251-9208 or bkirknorris@trezevantmanor.org.

DOTTIE'S DIGS

I'll be the first to admit that some surprises are not good. However, working in Dottie's Digs is FULL of GOOD surprises. My favorite line is, "You just never know!" Not long ago I received a donation of collector plates, so like I often do, I did a little research.

Edna Hibel was a prolific artist living from 1917-2014. Born in Boston she was trained as an artist at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. She worked in oil, watercolor, and perfected the drawing medium called stone lithography. In 1983 Ms. Hibel was selected by the United Nations World Food Program to create "Mother Earth", an original painting to be used by the United Nations as a limited edition art print. In 1995 she created, "Our Mothers Before Us" to commentate the 75th Anniversary of the ratification of the 19th Amendment which gave women the right to vote. Edna Hibel received the Leonardo da Vinci World Award of Arts in 2001 from the World Cultural Council. The list could go on.

Edna Hibel is quoted as saying, "My art is dedicated to the wondrous relationship between mother and child." In 1984 her first plate in the Hibel Mother's Day Series won awards as Plate of the Year from the National Association of Limited Edition Dealers.

We now had in Dottie's, 18 of these mint condition, limited edition, plates in boxes with authenticity papers. They were from various years and series. Some were duplicates. My guess is that they had been purchased as gifts and never given. The going Ebay price for the plates is in a range of $2.00-$30.00. Our 18 plates have been priced in Dottie's for $5.00 and none had sold until...

Enter my neighbor. She contacted me about a possible Christmas gift for her son. I told her of the upcoming Dottie's Digs sale and invited her to take a look. I was anxious to have her at the sale I had been describing to her for a while. She came with her daughter and they had a ball getting things ON and OFF their list! Then I noticed they were looking at the plates. She said, "These are Edna Hibel plates." "You know Geoff (her husband) and his mom were some of her models when he was a baby." WHAT??????

Geoff's grandparents lived in Hartford, CT where they met Edna Hibel through art exhibits. Meme (grandmother) was an artist herself and started collecting Edna Hibel work early on. Once in NYC, where Geoff and his parents were living, they attended a Hibel art exhibit together. Edna Hibel was taken with Lucia (mother) and Geoff, probably because of her young age. Ms. Hibel painted two pictures of them, one of which my neighbor has in Memphis. None of the collector plates are named for Lucia and Geoff, but there is one named Lucia and Child, however, the child is a girl. Go figure.

My neighbor bought some of the plates and she will be a return customer. We had a chatty exchange with her mother-in-law, who couldn't believe the coincidence and now we have a great story.

Connections are all around us. Dottie's Digs is full of them.

Our Stories

by Jack Richbourg

I think some people are just destined to meet. No matter how hard you shake the snow globe, those little white specks seem to settle down the same way every time. Donna Sue and Wayne Shannon are like that. They just had to meet and marry. It couldn't have turned out any other way.

At birth, only 283 miles of the Mississippi, separated them with Wayne growing up in St. Louis and Donna Sue in South Memphis. Both worked in the area of personnel and training for large corporations. It was just a matter of time before their paths crossed in 1972 at a professional conference. The spirits that guided them must have worked in tandem bringing them to that conference where they began their long-distance courtship.

Wayne was with Crouse-Hinds Electrical Company in Charlottesville, Virginia where he managed personnel and training. He had been in that profession for many years. Donna Sue was new having just been hired by MLGW, but her work there turned out to be a pivotal point in her life and the life of our city.

MLGW was in trouble. Sued in Federal District Court for discrimination, it had to desegregate its management within 5 years, a very tall order in 1978. Donna Sue had the job of assessing African-American and female employees, training them, and moving them into management positions. It was a revolutionary shakeup, and a lot of people became very, very angry. Donna Sue, for a while, became the most disliked woman in the company, but five years later, the judge dismissed the lawsuit. There was no further need for his supervision because Donna Sue had dragged MLGW kicking and screaming into compliance. Today, she describes it as her greatest achievement.

Meanwhile, Wayne, a former Eagle Scout, was transforming boys into men at his job with the Boy Scouts of America in Chicago and New York. He left the Boy Scouts disenchanted with their support of the Viet Nam War and joined Offender Aid and Restoration which helped convicted people obtain GEDs and health care in Charlottesville. There, one of his board members, also a state legislator asked him to be his legislative assistant. Politics now sent Wayne on expeditions throughout rural Virginia registering poor, African Americans voters.

Do you see the similarities? The parallels are becoming clear. Both were drawn to jobs that helped the disadvantaged. It was just a matter of time until they met.

Like Wayne's scouting background, Donna Sue was a Y Teen with the YWCA and later became the president of the organization. She earned a full ride to the University of Tennessee which was cut short by her first marriage. She finished up at Memphis State, added a master's degree in Communications, and taught there for 25 years.

She joined the Panel of American Women and worked to improve race relations by speaking and fostering personal relationships with women of color. This earned her a reputation as a civil rights advocate, but there were disappointments. Her children were harassed and intimidated for her stance on civil rights.

"My greatest regret is that they had to be victims of the very racial prejudice I was trying to eliminate," but she utilized these experiences in her speaking engagements with the Panel. Her efforts won her the Woman of Achievement Award for Vision in 2000. Later, at historic Mason Temple where King gave his last speech, the City of Memphis and the Church of God in Christ gave her the "Be the Dream" award for her work in civil rights.

"Hey, don't forget. I won an award, too," Wayne protested.

"Oh, yeah? What was that" I asked.

"I got Donna Sue, the only award I ever wanted!"

Donna Sue had given Wayne two requirements before she would marry him. He had to move to Memphis, and he had to have a job there.

"Done!" said Wayne who would enjoy a long career reorganizing Dobbs International Services

Donna Sue & Wayne Shannon

in Memphis, before working at MLGW, the very company Donna Sue had integrated so long ago.

"Or," she added, "We could wait to marry until you finish what you started in Charlottesville,"

"Nope. If I do, someone else will marry you, and I'll be left in the cold."

So, feel free, my friends. Just go ahead. Pick up that snow globe and shake it all you want. When everything settles, the scene will still be the same. They just had to meet and marry. It couldn't have turned out any other way.

If Dogs Are Our Best friends, They Must Be Our Best Therapy.

~ Rev. Julie McKenna ~

In addition to Independent Living offerings, some new things are happening in Allen Morgan and the Terrace. For the past several years Trezevant has had 3 outside volunteers bring their pets for Pet Therapy in Allen Morgan and the Terrace on a regular basis. Starting in 2020, Trezevant will have two new in-house pet therapy teams. Elinor Reed and her dog Molly Francis, sometimes also escorted by “Molly’s aunt”, Marilyn Dunavant, are working with Chaplain Barbara visiting residents. Milton Winter and his dog Dora are also visiting residents. It is a joy to see our residents share their own pets with fellow residents who are often unable to get out and about or enjoy their own pets.

According to leisurecare.com, pet therapy for seniors include increased self-esteem and confidence. It improves social skills and reduces the risk of depression. Pet Therapy reduces feelings of loneliness and anxiety. Besides bringing joy to their owners, they also help others feel the tenderness and caring.

Pet therapy for the elderly is very popular in assisted and independent living communities. It has only been a few years ago that pets have been allowed at Trezevant and it is very popular amongst pet lovers. Trezevant allows those living in an apartment a pet no more than 25 lbs. and 45 lbs. for a Garden Home. Many senior living communities are opening up their facilities to have pet therapy programs for their residents as well as ownership. Whether you own a pet or you attend a pet therapy session, animals can make your day just a little brighter and enjoyable.

Jim McDonnell: at home in history.

On a very warm January day, I walked into the home of Jim and Missie McDonnell to a kind hello. As Jim and I sat in his den, I am noticing his slippers because they are very unique. He will tell me at the end of my visit that they are from New Zealand and are very comfortable. The whole visit was very comfortable and conversation flowed talking with Jim and about his life.

Jim started from the beginning: born in 1925 in Memphis, Jim lived in Midtown next to Chickasaw Gardens. He knew growing up that he would head to boarding school. This came to fruition when Jim attended The Webb School in Bell Buckle Tennessee for his tenth through twelfth grade school years.

“The Webb School had an enormous impact on the development of my character,” said Jim McDonnell. This included the honor code which each student acknowledges on entering school. In fact, Webb invented the honor code in 1870 being the first educational institution (secondary or college) to implement such a code.

Jim graduated from Webb in 1943 in a class of 25 graduating seniors and later served as Chairman of The Board of Trustees for 23 years. In the last few years, Jim was able to establish the McDonnell-Follin Scholar Program at Webb. This program supports an in-depth academic study of a subject selected by the student for a semester-long review under the mentoring guidance of a faculty member. The student creates a concentrated field of study meeting with his faculty committee which reviews and questions the research. Hopefully, this will develop a technique that will be beneficial after the student enters college.

Upon graduation, Jim attended Vanderbilt University. Since World War II was in progress, Jim entered the Navy V-12 program, attending Sewanee and Princeton following which he served on a Destroyer (Sewanson DD 729) for three years.

Jim attended Yale University where he received his undergraduate and Law Degree. Later, he was called back into the Navy during the Korean War for two years. He then returned to Memphis to practice law.

Jim practiced law at Canada, Russell, and Turner which at the time was the third-largest firm in Memphis with seven attorneys. It was a general practice of Law but heavy on litigation.

Jim traveled to many states while practicing. Also, through mergers, the firm's name changed many times, currently being Wyatt, Tarrant and Combs LLP.

Coming to the end of our talk, I observed many family portraits around the den. I asked Jim about his family and he let me know that they are spread throughout the US. He brought up a home in Bolivar Tennessee that has belonged in his family for many generations. This house is about an hour away called McNeal Place.

McNeal Place or the Ezekiel Polk McNeal House is an Italianate mansion in Bolivar, Tennessee, part of Hardeman County, Tennessee. The home was built for Major Ezekiel Polk McNeal's (born 1804) and his wife. Initial construction began in 1858 and the mansion was completed during the American Civil War circa 1861 - 1862. It was designed by architect Samuel Sloan. The home is in the National Register of Historic Places and is described as “the finest Italianate house in West Tennessee and among the most outstanding in the state.” The house is a two-story brick building with square cupola. Beautifully rounded doorways and rich tapestry throughout the home make this a must to visit on your bucket list.

Jim and Missie have lived at Trezevant, in a home, since March of 2014. They have a beautiful blended family of six children, 12 grandchildren, and 3 great-grandchildren.

Ben Thinking

*I heard somewhere that:
It was a sad day when I discovered that my Universal Remote Control
did not control the universe . . . not even remotely.*

*Maybe not so sad at all -- perhaps fortunate.
I can't think of anyone I want in control of the Universe except the One who is.*

Lord knows, she was a find.

by Mary Alice Quinn

She wears more hats than a haberdasher has on his shelves. Consider: grocer, druggist, gift store manager, accessory buyer, dress designer (who else would fashion an outfit from a Rand McNally map?) cashier, devoted wife, mother of two grown children, chef, and gardener – the jobs go on and on.

Most of the year, Robin Swanson (Foundation Retail Manager) and Dorsey Wade, volunteer assistant, spend time and effort purchasing items for the Little Store and the annual holiday sale. (Add another hat to the list – this one made of red velvet trimmed with white fur.)

Organization is the wind beneath her wings. She also devotes hours to managing Dottie’s Digs (the ground level shop selling everything from sterling silver items to $ jewelry.) Proof of her resolve to succeed is that bottom line. In 2019, “the Digs” raised $94,000, $12,000 more than 2018.

Robin attributes her skills and energy to a Higher Power - her devotion, her faith and her love of God.

“I am truly using the gifts that God gave me. Hospitality is a gift. I use the gifts of God. What I am doing is not work but Joy. People want to come and I want to welcome them.”

Robin graduated from Gustavous Adolphus College, a Lutheran liberal arts school in St. Peter, MN, where she majored in Sociology with an emphasis on geriatrics. “Older people have always been ‘my people.’ I am very comfortable with them.”

She met, Dan, her husband-to-be at GAC where he was studying Religion and Philosophy, ultimately earning a law degree.

They lived in Franklin, KY for 20 years where they raised their family and Dan worked as a corporate attorney. Robin did substitute teaching, was the Christian Education Director at Franklin First United Methodist Church for 10 years and then most recently was the Director of the Gallery on the Square, a non-profit gallery selling KY and TN art as well as hosting classes and community events.

The Swansons moved to Memphis 6 years ago. Dan is on the legal staff of St. Jude Children’s Research Hospital.

Ironically, it was the double connection of church and the elderly that enabled Robin to find her way to Trezevant. Through relationships at Grace-St. Luke’s Episcopal Church a conversation with Rinnie Wood led to volunteering in the Little Store. Directions were “fluff up the shop, and work special events.”

“Grover Bowles was about to retire as the retail manager of the Little Store. Dorsey was in charge of gifts. When Grover retired, I was hired to work 20 hours a week. 2 years later in a conversation with then Foundation Director, Nora Conaway, and CEO Kent Phillips a new full time position which included managing Dottie’s Digs, was created and Robin was named Foundation Retail Manager.

“I’m truly using the gifts that God gave me. God gave me a shop and older people. I’m trying to be the woman God wants me to be. His plan has not always aligned with my plan, but I trust Him completely. His plan has always been better!”

“My parents are very disciplined and compassionate Christians.” Robin’s dad passed away 7 years ago, her mom still lives in Rochester, MN and visits Memphis frequently. “I learned a lot from them. Time management is important. All of my days are structured.”

Weekends are for Dan, church, friends, and projects. She tries at least one new recipe, reads, and does gardening- including mowing her own lawn! “I get some of my best ideas when I’m mowing!”

Exercise is an important part of her life. Several weekday afternoons find Robin at the Kroc Center for a 5:30 Spin Class. At home, supper is always loaded with fresh vegetables. Then it is early to bed, early to rise for devotion to planning the day.

“I’m just trying to be the woman He created.”

Come and see the prayer tree area! In the connector hallway between Independent Living and Allen Morgan we added a prayer tree last year, thanks to the talents of artist Carol DeForest, and a generous donation from Mary Virginia Rogers in memory of Dr. Helen Van Fossen. The sculpture was new and interesting, but it looked lost in a dull and empty space. That area has changed dramatically in the last few months. Dina Smith, our longtime much loved chapel volunteer (and future resident) took on the project of sprucing up the space. With the chapel committee’s encouragement, she purchased pillows for the furniture and artistic wooden pieces to go in the windows. Members of the team also helped create a lending library out of the breakfront in the space. (The books in the breakfront are devotionals and assorted spiritually uplifting readings that have been donated over time to the chapel. They are available for folks to read as they sit in the prayer tree space, or on loan back to their rooms. Come and check out the chapel lending library!)

The finishing touch on the prayer tree area was just completed. Dina commissioned Trezevant’s own art teacher, Anne Sayle to paint a background mural for the tree. The addition of the mural makes the tree “Pop.” A huge thanks to Dina and all her work on this project, to make this space extra special. Come and check it out—and put a prayer in the knot of the tree if you’d like.
